

Report to the Governor and the Legislature

on Funding for History Programs and Projects from the Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund

January 15, 2010

Letter from Nina Archabal

The Minnesota Historical Society is pleased to report on history expenditures and activities carried out with support from the Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund in this first year of the Fund's existence.

We begin by thanking the people of Minnesota for their vote of support for history activities with their approval of the Legacy Amendment on November 4, 2008. Because of this landmark action, Minnesotans across the state will have an unprecedented ability to preserve their history for many years to come and to provide a true legacy gift to future generations.

The past six months have been very exciting in this initial start-up phase. We began our journey with a conversation with Minnesota's history community, through a series of public input meetings, as well as an online survey, to gather information to assist in implementation of history grant programs, as well as other history programs. Society staff members also have dedicated many, many hours to planning and implementing educational programs to deliver Minnesota history across the state, at the History Center, at historic sites and via the latest forms of technology. Many of these programs will be undertaken by the Society itself, while others will be carried out by the Society working in partnership with other organizations.

Due to the short amount of time since the passage of the first legacy appropriation bill, we consider this first report to be an interim or progress report. We look forward to providing the Legislature and the Governor with greater detail about history projects and their outcomes and impacts in future reports.

The format of this report reflects the six sections of the appropriations bill. We have described the process used to date, outcomes, if known, and activities expected to take place over the course of the next year. We would be pleased to provide additional updates on the progress of these history programs as we move forward.

The Society takes very seriously its responsibility to the voters of Minnesota, their Legislature and Governor, as we carry out their intentions to provide the resources that will help the state's people understand their past, and in turn, move on to a better future.

Sincerely,

Nina Archabal
Director

Preserving Our Legacy

On November 4, 2008, the voters of Minnesota approved the Clean Water, Land and Legacy Amendment to ensure the preservation of some of the most important elements that make Minnesota what it is today. This amendment is sometimes referred to, in shorthand, as the Legacy Amendment. The constitutional language contains a provision that funding shall be used “to preserve Minnesota’s history.”

Since the American Heritage Dictionary defines legacy as “something handed down from an ancestor or a predecessor or from the past,” it is fitting that history is a part of this amendment. And it is further fitting that the Minnesota Historical Society, which has been preserving Minnesota’s past for future generations for 161 years, along with our partner organizations, will play an important role in the Legacy Amendment.

Shortly after the passage of the Amendment, individuals and organizations involved with various aspects of Minnesota history and historic preservation in Minnesota gathered to discuss how Legacy funds could be best used to further the educational and economic development benefits of historical work in our state. The group represented a broad coalition of history groups in Minnesota, including the Minnesota Historical Society, the Minnesota Alliance of Local History Museums, the Council for Minnesota Archaeology, the Minnesota Archaeological Society, the Preservation Alliance of Minnesota and Historic Northwest Minnesota. This group, known as the Minnesota History Coalition, convened a series of town meetings across the state and created recommendations for expenditures of Legacy dollars for history programs. These recommendations were presented to the Legislature and formed the conceptual basis of appropriations made in 2009.

2009 Appropriations

The 2009 Legislature provided generous funding for history purposes in the first appropriations made from the Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund. Funding was provided in six general areas — grants; statewide programs; partnerships to implement statewide and regional programs; an exhibit on Minnesota’s people, regions and cultures; an archaeological survey; and funding for a digital history library. This report provides an update on each of the six appropriation areas.

Since this is a new appropriation, which funds a series of new programs, we see this first report as an interim report, describing the progress of a series of new projects. We look forward to future reports which will detail the exciting work to be conducted by the Minnesota Historical Society, county and local historical organizations, historic preservation organizations and other history partners.

With a strong statewide historical organization, 87 county historical societies, over 300 other historical organizations and thousands of significant historic properties, there is a great deal of work to be done.

Implementation process

In order to maximize efficiency and effectiveness of appropriations made by the Minnesota Legislature for history purposes, the Minnesota Historical Society held a series of public meetings in June of 2009. Discussion at these meetings focused primarily on grants programs, but included many aspects of the Legacy Amendment and projects for which specific Legacy funding was provided.

In addition, throughout the summer and fall of 2009, Minnesota Historical Society staff worked to plan, design and begin implementation of programs to deliver history to the Minnesota public. Programs are described in greater detail later in this report.

1. Historical and Cultural Grants Program

Appropriation language:

(b) Statewide Historic and Cultural Grants. (i) $2,250,000 in 2010 and $4,500,000 in 2011 are appropriated for history programs and projects operated or conducted by or through local, county, regional or other historical or cultural organizations; or for activities to preserve significant historic and cultural resources. Funds are to be distributed through a competitive grants process. The Minnesota Historical Society shall administer these funds using established grants mechanisms, and with assistance from the advisory committee created herein.

Minnesota is fortunate to have numerous active historical organizations across the state, ranging from county historical organizations to local historical organizations, to topical historical organizations, such as transportation history museums. In addition, our state has many historic structures that help to tell the stories of people and events of our past. Funding provided through the Legacy Amendment will help these organizations to preserve our state's past through a grants program, as directed by appropriations language. Legislation also created an advisory group, the Historic Resources Advisory Committee, to provide policy guidance and grant recommendations.

Input gathered at public meetings formed the basis of a draft grants program, which was presented to the Historic Resources Advisory Committee at its initial meeting in September, 2009. This draft grants program included grants funding at three funding level categories (including a Small grants category, which will be distributed monthly, as long as funds are available; Mid-level and Large grants categories); funding for history programs (with more detailed categories defined) and historic preservation activities and eligibility criteria. Additional detail on grants program can be found at www.mnhs.org/legacy.

The first round of Small Grants (or "fast track grants") was approved by the Minnesota Historical Society's Executive Committee in December, 2009. Fast track grants will continue on a rolling, monthly basis, until funds are exhausted. On Jan. 11 and 12, 2010, the Historic Resources Advisory Committee will meet to consider Mid-level and Large grant applications, which were received in late November and subsequently reviewed by MHS staff and peer reviewers. Recommendations will then be submitted to the MHS Executive Council, for its approval, as called for in appropriation language. In this first round of Mid-level and Large grant applications, in addition to Small or fast-track grant requests, a total of $18,271,695 in grant requests was received, with a total of $2,250,000 available for fiscal year 2010.

The Minnesota Historical Society has been preserving Minnesota's history since its creation by the Territorial Legislature in 1849. Today, the Society continues to collect evidence of our past, and presents award-winning exhibits and educational programs that share these stories with Minnesotans of all ages. Legacy funds will allow the Society to reach new audiences and use innovative technological methods to bring lively history programs to a statewide audience. Many projects are in the planning stage, and will be rolled out over the next several months.

4. Exhibit on Minnesota's Regions and Cultures

Appropriation language:

(e) $2,500,000 in 2010 is appropriated to the Minnesota Historical Society for an exhibit on the regional, local, and cultural diversity of Minnesota's history and cultural heritage. These funds are available until expended. These funds are for the creation of both traveling exhibits to be made available to local historical and cultural organizations and an exhibit to be housed at the Minnesota History Center. The Minnesota Historical Society shall raise funds from private sources to augment this appropriation, with a goal of $1,500,000 in private funds to be raised. This is not a match requirement, but the Minnesota Historical Society shall certify that a good faith effort has been made.

Our Minnesota exhibit at the Minnesota History Center

Our Minnesota (a working title) is a 14,000-square-foot exhibit showing the distinctive regional cultures that make up the state. The exhibit will be designed with school field trips as its primary audience and families with children as the secondary audience, and will be designed to complement state history standards and curriculum for history and social studies. The exhibit will show how Minnesota's land has shaped our culture and how our culture has shaped the land. Divided into three areas, the prairie, the cities and the woods, the exhibit will cover a wide period of history from pre-contact to today and will cover such subjects as American Indian history, settlement, immigration, manufacturing, agriculture, timber and mining industries, railroads and other subjects of state significance. The exhibit will open in three phases, the first phase in December 2010 and the last phase in December 2013. The Minnesota History Center serves over 60,000 schoolchildren per year who attend on organized visits.

Traveling Exhibitions Program

As a component of Our Minnesota, the Minnesota Historical Society will develop a number of traveling exhibits which will be available to historical organizations, libraries and other venues throughout Minnesota. The number of exhibits has not been determined, but it is anticipated that at least 10 exhibits will be made available through the program in its initial start up. The design of the program has been informed by extensive surveys of potential venue organizations. Subjects will be chosen based on the demands of these organizations and will be adapted from Our Minnesota, as well as other popular exhibits produced by the Society. The program will be supported in part by nominal rental and shipping fees and funding from the Arts and Cultural Heritage Fund. The first exhibit, Minnesota on the Map, will be completed by late February 2010 and the entire first suite of 10 exhibits will be completed and available by December 2011.

5. Statewide Survey of Archaeological and Cultural Resources

Appropriation language:

(f) Statewide Survey of Historical and Archaeological Sites. $250,000 in 2010 and $250,000 in 2011 are appropriated to the Minnesota Historical Society for a contract or contracts to be let on a competitive basis to conduct a general statewide survey of Minnesota's sites of historical, archaeological, and cultural significance. Results of this survey must be published in a searchable form, available to the public on a cost-free basis. The Minnesota Historical Society, the Office of the State Archaeologist, and the Board of Indian Affairs shall each appoint a representative to an oversight board, to select a contractor and direct the conduct of this survey. The oversight board shall consult with the Minnesota Departments of Transportation and Natural Resources. Funds appropriated for this purpose do not cancel and may be carried over from one year to the next.

As required by the implementing legislation, an oversight board was appointed for the Statewide Survey of Historical and Archaeological Sites. The board's duties are to select contractors to undertake the survey activities and to direct the conduct of the surveys.

The oversight board consists of Scott Anfinson (State Archaeologist), Patricia Emerson (Minnesota Historical Society) and Jim Jones (Minnesota Indian Affairs Council). The board and the Minnesota Historical Society sponsored a public meeting to discuss the survey and ask for ideas on Sept. 9, 2009 at Historic Fort Snelling. As required by the legislation, the board consulted with MnDOT and DNR prior to issuing any requests for proposals (RFPs). The board also consulted with the Council for Minnesota Archaeology.

In October 2009, two RFPs written by the oversight board were advertised: one for a survey of burial mounds in Scott and Crow Wing Counties utilizing existing Light Detection and Ranging (LIDAR) data and a second for a survey of Indian sacred sites in the Twin Cities area. The Minnesota Historical Society received eight proposals for the LIDAR Mound survey and three proposals for the sacred sites survey. The oversight board awarded contracts for these two initial surveys in November 2009. The LIDAR Mound Survey of Scott and Crow Wing Counties has been awarded to the Iowa Office of the State Archaeologist, Joe Artz, principal investigator. The Sacred Site Survey of the Metro Area has been awarded to St. Cloud State University, Kelly Branham, principal investigator. Contracts have been implemented by the Minnesota Historical Society and the oversight board will meet with both survey teams. Both surveys will be completed in June 2010.

The oversight board and the Society anticipate releasing RFPs for additional surveys in early 2010. The board will continue to consult with the DNR, MnDOT and other stakeholders prior to issuing the RFPs.

6. Digital History Library

Appropriation language:

(g) Digital Library. $500,000 in 2010 is appropriated for a digital library project to preserve, digitize, and share Minnesota images, documents, and historic materials. The Minnesota Historical Society shall cooperate with the MINITEX system and shall jointly share this appropriation for these purposes.

The Minnesota Digital Library (MDL) is a statewide, multi-institutional initiative to make the rich historical resources of the state's public and academic libraries, archives, museums and historical societies available to the public via the web. It complements the public access to the book catalogs and indexes to the collections of these institutions currently provided by the MnLINK Library Gateway and the Electronic Library of Minnesota (ELM). In September, the MDL's Steering Committee identified three objectives for the current biennium.

First, Minnesota Reflections, an online database of historic photos and documents from the collections of more than 100 institutions in the state and the MDL's signature project, would add additional information from more institutions. During the first five months of the fiscal year, 7,349 new documents, maps and photos were added from 21 institutions, including five that were participating for the first time. It now contains more than 40,000 images. It is anticipated that this number will reach at least 50,000 by the end of the current fiscal year. On average, there are about 20,000 researcher visits to the database each month. It is accessible directly through its own website as well as through the MnLINK Library Gateway, OCLC WorldCat, the international catalog of library collections, and through the Great Rivers Network, a regional portal to historical collections and indexes.

Second, the current software that supports the Minnesota Reflections database was selected several years ago because of its strong support for access to photographic collections. However, there are concerns about its suitability to support a wider range of historical materials including books, newspapers, and digital audio and video on a large scale. Technical staff at the Society and the University of Minnesota, which supports the current database, will investigate alternative solutions during the next fiscal year.

The MDL's third concern has been for the permanent preservation of the public's substantial investment in the development of digital versions of these important historical materials. Without attention to their long-term preservation, these digital files are at substantial risk of being lost. Fortunately, the MDL can benefit by the experience of the nation's university libraries which are developing considerable expertise in this area, especially since Google began large-scale digitization of their book collections. Work has begun on developing a small prototype preservation project over the next nine months. This will involve the MDL's primary partners (the University of Minnesota, the Minnesota Historical Society and Minitex) and other potential partners including Minnesota Public Radio, Twin Cities Public Television, and county and local historical societies. Through such a modest initiative, the MDL can explore the technical, administrative and governance issues of such a cooperative venture.

Results of this survey must be published in a searchable form, available to the public on a cost-free basis. The Minnesota Historical Society, the Office of the State Archaeologist, and the Board of Indian Affairs shall each appoint a representative to an oversight board, to select a contractor and direct the conduct of this survey.
